

Stephen Freeborn received his undergraduate degree from St. Lawrence University in 1978 , with dual degrees in biology and psychology, and a minor in chemistry. He received his law degree from the University of Puget Sound in 1983. Mr. Freeborn has had his own law firm since 1993, located in Federal Way, which he currently shares with his wife, who is also a practicing attorney. Stephen Freeborn's areas of practice are bankruptcy and debtor - creditor issues, with primary focus on chapter 7 and chapter 13; criminal defense representation of misdemeanors through felonies; business and contract law, representing clients throughout the state and country; insurance subrogation , landlord tenant law, restrictive covenants and homeowner associations. Mr. Freeborn has extensively litigated in each of these areas. He also serves, as he has done for over 20 years, as a part time judge for six municipal courts in South King County as well as the King County District Court, and has also served as both a mediator and arbitrator in dispute resolution.